Von Cathy Gillen Thacker : A Baby by Chance (Heart of the West) before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised A Baby by Chance (Heart of the West):

Madison Burnes is a glamorous, sexy lady executive and is after Chance Cartwright a good looking no nonsense cowboy who trains horses at his a ranch in Wyoming to do a commerical for a SUV for her ad agency. He wants nothing to do with it and has told her so. She buys him for a weekend at a local bachelor charity auction and thats when the action starts. He takes her back to his ranch with every intention of letting her know he will not do the commerical that she wants him to do (she thinks she can talk him into doing it). After a night of passion he agrees to do it, so she heads back to Texas to start the ball rolling to film the ad at his ranch. After a couple of weeks go by Madison realizes she is pregnant with Chance's baby. She returns to his ranch and tells him about the baby. Most of the storyline then takes place at the ranch filming the ad with Chance's ranting and raving, dealing with their similiar problems in their pasts, careers, and finally acknowledging their love for each other. This is another book I picked up that is part of a series called Heart of the West - I will definitely have to read the other nine books in this series ASAP.
