'S Okay....But not GreatVon mskelly@puc.eduI had to read this one twice over, to figure out how the h/h managed to do that whole misunderstanding thing like they did. Sabina was okay, and so was Thorn, but good lord! When was this thing published? "I hate you -- but let's make out MORE!!!" Thorn is quite the Alpha male, and Sabina stands up to him for most of the book, but the ending is -- almost -- disappointing. Very much an 80's romance. The main thing I had against it was the pace -- it just went flyin' on by [another 100 pages would have been a great improvement] and the situation was really contrived, what with Thorn's brother and her best friend and Thorn's parents... still, a good book for an evening in.

Von Ein Kunde Sabina and Thorn are excellent at misunderstanding each other. The plot is well written. Diana Palmer is excellent at writing plots that tugs at your heartstrings. The other books that are heart-tuggers are Coltrain's Proposal and The Patient Nurse. I can really feel Sabina's emotions in After The Music. I cry when she cries and laugh when she laughs. As one of Diana Palmer avid fan, I definitely recommend this one.

Von Ein Kunde I loved this book, because the characters were well matched. It kept me amused. The plot was a good and I especially like the scene where Sabina and Thorn first meet. It's something that would most unlikely happen, but still humorous. I love Elizabeth Lowell's books so it was of no surprise that I enjoyed this book.

Kurzbeschreibung Rock star Sabina Cane had heard plenty about the wealthy Hamilton Regan Thorndon III, head honcho of Thorn Oil. His brother, Al, warned her of Thorn's reputation for breaking hearts, but singing was Sabina's life and she was grateful for any work she could get. She and her band would take the gig in the New Orleans nightclub, even if it was owned by Mr. Thorndon III. But Thorn wasn't the stuffy old businessman she'd expected. He was prickly, passionate, rock stubborn and liked to play matchmaker. And he had the perfect match in mind: he wanted Sabina, no matter what the cost. Didn't he know that there are some things money can't buy?
