KundenrezensionenHilfreichste Kundenrezensionen0 von 0 Kunden fanden die folgende Rezension hilfreich. What a grand finaleVon starbooksIHfor the Middleton's Pride Trilogy! In the beginning you think this will be just an other instalment in Middleton's fight against the Raubach empire and there were times I thought the story took too long for something new to happen. Then suddenly you realize that here and there, unforeseen things are happening and keep coming up and before you know it, we have a mysterious base of the Ancients with incredible secrets right in the middle of it, seers who can see into the true nature of reality, Fei Long in great peril, struggling with formulas beyond even his abilities and with life or death decisions which will change him forever. The last third of the book is a thrilling ride. Marvellously done! The next books will be so exiting, I can hardly wait. However, a word of warning to the author: you surely know which characters' death will be the killing blow to the series, don't you? Because then I'm out of here. Congratulations for this exiting story!

Kurzbeschreibung After emerging victorious against the Rim Fleet detachment sent to destroy them, Captain Middleton and the Pride of Prometheus' crew point the bow at the heart of the enemy stronghold with a unified purpose: to destroy these Imperial interlopers and erase their subversive plans to conquer the Spineward Sectors before the first of the Raubach Clan's dominos can fall. But their ship has been through more than even her Captain was aware, and before they can break their orbit of Capital the crew's morale will once again be tested by an unexpected change in berthing assignments -- one which will have a domino effect of its own on certain members of the crew. Their journey will take them beyond the Rim of the Spineward Sectors, and the first leg of that journey brings them face to face with evidence of a truth so profound it challenges Imperial propaganda at the most fundamental level. But this evidence also leads Captain Middleton to a path which just might grant the Pride and her crew a path to victory over their enemy -- an enemy which outnumbers them fifty warships to one! It will take guile, it will take valor, it will take grit, and most of all it will take the best ship in the Spineward Sectors to carry this brave crew to the field on which one of the Spine's most important battles will take place. Before the end, relationships will be tested, new friends will be made, old ones will be called upon, and the price of victory will require the ultimate sacrifice -- and perhaps much, much more -- from the Pride's crew.
